SALE OF PROPERTY RECALLS EARLY DAYS IN REDWOOD CITY

Mansfield Residence, Scene of Many Social Events in Younger Days, Sold This Week

By D. E. O'KEEFE

The sale of the Alice Mansfield home on Hamilton street this week to Pierre Bordinave of this city opens memory's casket and recalls events in the history of Redwood City during the days of the civil war, the time when the old structure with its quaint gables, rambling roofs and style of architecture no longer seen was erected. Every nook and corner of the ancient building is hallowed with associations of bygone days. Triumphs and tragedies are now interwoven in its history.

Men of prominence in the affairs of the state and nation have dwelt there, youth and beauty, found a happy abiding place within its sacred walls in times past.

In 1863 the structure was erected by Benjamin G. Lathrop, the first county clerk of San Mateo county. It was one of the first large buildings erected in Redwood City. The site was a three-acre tract on Broadway, now the property of the Redwood grammar school. It set back from the street considerably in a clump of trees. John Donnelly was the contractor and he was assited by J. O. Shaw and James Dorland. The contractor became financially embarrassed in completing the work and some time afterwards went to San Mateo, where the family is now prominent.

Lathrop was defeated in the latter sixties for clerk and some time after removed to San Francisco where his eldest daughter, Jennie, married Walter Turnbull, the well-known newsapper man of early days. Their daughter is at present a prominent doctor of the metropolis. Thomas Lathrop then appeared upon the scene and was elected sheriff of San Mateo county. The Lathrops were southern democrats. They were well educated and affable gentlemen. The Lathrops were identified with the early history of the county. Thomas Lathrop in the seventies was defeated for re-election by John Edgar, who some time afterwards was appointed deputy warden at San Quentin. This was the time when Judge Ames was the political boss of the county. Soon after his defeat Lathrop like his brother went to San Francisco to reside both becoming prominent there.

The old home some time in the seventies became the property of the late General Patrick Edward Connor, a brave and fearless Irishman, who made an enviable record for his dashing and daring in the war of the rebellion. In the early fifties he was captain of a steamer plying between San Francisco and Red-City. This was the time when the noted bandit Joaquin Murietta had the state in an uproar by his continued plundering and murdering the miners and others in the mountain counties of the state. Connor formed a posse and went in pursuit of the treacherous outlaw. There were several posses after the bandit but it was the one headed by Connor that captured and shot Murietta near Hollister. It is believed by many that it was a well-directed bullet from the rifle of Connor that stopped Murietta in his mad career. Joaquin's head was preserved in a museum in San Francisco and was destroyed in the fire of 1906. When the war broke out Connor immediately enlisted going to Washington from Redwood City. He was soon in the midst of the conflict and by his bravery was soon made the colonel of the regiment and before the close of the unpleasantness was made brigadier-general. The general joined the regular army after the war and became famous as an Indian fighter.

However, General Connor is better known to fame for the manner in which he handled the Mormon uprising in the seventies. He was sent to Fort Douglass at Salt Lake City to subdue the polygamous gentlemen of that section. The Mormons declared they would kill Connor on sight. He heard of this and immediately mounted his guns in the city and manning them walked down from the fort to the city, daring the angry mormons about him to molest him. In firm tones he told them that they must obey the dictates of the constitution and respect the flag. Pointing to the guns on the fort he exclaimed "Do this or your city will be blown to atoms." The warning had its effect, the Mormon question was settled.

Shortly after this the general came to Redwood City, installing his family in the new home. The grounds were well kept, green lawns and beautiful flowers made the Connor home one of the show places of Redwood City. Lavish entertainments took place there at which noted military men of the country were guests. The Connor family consisted of Mrs. Connor, who was a sister of Mrs. Pete Leathers, Mrs. David McLellan, all prominent residents of Redwood City in those days and five children, Miss Kate Connor, Maurice, Edward, Eugene and Hillary Connor.

The wedding of Miss Connor to B. Oliver about forty years ago was a big society event in Redwood City. It was an elaborate affair that will be remembered by all old pioneers now remaining on this mundane sphere. The late Archbishop Alemeny came from San Francisco to perform the ceremony. The grim old general was there to give his pretty and charming daughter to the keeping of the handsome young Oliver. The Olivers are wealthy and a few years ago resided at Woodside.

After the death of the general the family moved from here and little is known of the sons who reside in various parts of the state.

In the eighties the old home became the dwelling place of Ralph Smith, then eidtor of the Times-Gazette. Smith was a talented writer and was the first advocate through the colums of the Times-Gazette for the purchase of the big basin where the large Sequoias are located. Many years afterwards the property was purchased by the state. Smith advocated pure fruit in the latter eighties. Smith was shot and killed by A. V. Powell who took exceptions to an article written by Smith concerning him. Powell was a brother-in-law of Dr. Stambaugh after whom Stambagh street is named. Powell was acquitted after three trials. Mrs. Smith and J. V. Swift edited the Times-Gazette for awhile after Smith's death. Mrs. Smith is a notary public of San Francisco She has never visited Redwood City since she left.

In the latter eighties General John F. Sheehan, a civil war veteran, became editor of the Times-Gazette and leased the old home. His son, Thomas Burnett Sheehan, a prominent federal official in tre Internal Revenue Department of the government at San Francisco was born there. He is a great grand son of the first governor of California, Governor Burnett. General Sheehan was in 1890 made census enumerator for the state with headquarters in San Francisco and gave up the editorshop and moved to the city.

In 1893 the trustees of the grammar school desired to purchase a site for a school. Among the sites presented was the Connor property and a portion of the Myles D. Sweeney holdings. The advocates of both sites waxed bitterly. A mass meeting was held, a ballot was taken and after considerable feeling was exhibited on both sides the Connor site was chosen by a few votes only.

A new school building was erected. E. I. Coffey being the architect, the architect who built the new high school. The old Connor home still remained amid the towering trees but the imposing board fence lined by cypress trees in front of the landscape was removed. The home was occupied by Professor Rossetter, who has long since faded into the mist of the invisible. Here all school entertainments and activities took place. The professor was a kindly man who loved his work and who delighted in entertaining his classes in the well-furnished rooms of the big dwelling, whose walls echoed with the joyful laughter and mirth of the boys and girls of thirty years ago, many of whom hae gained prominence in the business and professional world and some of whom still linger in the shadows of their alma mater.

The school opened in 1895 and when it began to expand the trustees sold the famous old dwelling to Sheriff J. H. Mansfield, who moved it to his property on Hamilton street, where it remains as one of the old land marks of Redwood City. There clusters around it hallowed associations and memories of days agone. Many of those who enjoyed warmth and comforts within its walls are now sleeping their long, last sleep and those who still live who were in any way connected with the old structure will cherish its memory as long as life lasts.

DR. R. E. SWANE TALKS TO KIWANIANS

Dr. R. E. Swane, head of the chemistry department in the University at Stanford, was the speaker at the meeting of the Kiwanis club last Tuesday. Dr Swane told of his impressions during a trip to Europe, especially to the war zone, and the comparison of the country now and that presented before the war. Dr. Swane has been an extensive traveler, and was very familiar with conditions in Europe before the war. During his last trip, from which he recently returned, he found conditions quite different.

The election of Von Hindenburg, said Dr. Swane, is no menace to the world. Germany realizes that there can be no war of conquest for her, at least during the present generation. Von Hindenburg, more than any other, realizes this fact, and will bend his efforts towards the reconstruction of Germany along the lines of peace.

Dr. Swane spoke especially of the fine attitude which England has shown in paying her war debt. He cited the instance of a man who was paying a tax of $460 a year on a moderately priced automobile, and said that other taxes were proportional. Yet the people of England are paying these taxes cheerfully, said Dr. Swane. He also spoke of the friendly feeling which exists between England and the United States, a friendship unparalled between any nations on the earth. Any one who seeks to arouse antagonism between these nations is a public menace to both countries, he said.

The meeting Tuesday was under the chairmanship of William Kelley of the Sequoia Union High School faculty. Prior to the main address Sam Winklebleck of the Tribune and Rev. R. J. Currie of the Congregational church gave short addresses.

WOODSIDE

Many of those who may be counted as the old-time residents of Woodside were saddened this week to hear of the death in San Francisco of Mrs. Robert Hageman. Mrs. Hageman, before her marriage, was Miss Anna Shelley. She spent most of her girlhood at the MacArthur place here and attended school with many who are still living here in the valley to whom she endeared herself by her gentle ways and strong character. Time has not gotten her through the years of separation, and although she had been ill for some while and the end was not unexpected, they feel a distinct loss at the final parting.

B. W. Stark of San Francisco who some time ago purchased the old Dalve place suffered a serious and what might have proved a fatal accident recently. He purchased a 2-horse power garden tractor and a disc cultivator. But when he endeavord to start the machine in his orchard it slipped into reverse gear and backed over him, cutting him severely. The tractor continued on its way and stopped only when it collided with a tree. Mr. Stark was taken to a San Francisco hospital.

Mrs. F. H. Mighall, Mrs. A. H. Audiffred, Mrs. J. L. Ross, Jr., and Mrs. John D. Gish, all of Woodside, were among the guests of Mrs. Calvin Grandi of Redwood City at a luncheon and card party given by her on Wednesday.

J. H. Heiser and family have come from San Francisco to take charge of the new general store to be opened in the Johnson building next to the Fair Oaks Market.

Mr. and Mrs. James Eva and son, Merideth, formerly of Redwood City, were guests on Thursday of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Mighall. Merideth Eva took his first degree in Masonry at Redwood City on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Upham will not occupy their home here this summer but will leave soon for a year's travel abroad. Mrs. Upham will go directly to Europe by way of New York, but Mr. Upham will go first to Japan and then to Europe after some months spent in the Orient.

P. W. Selby, the well-known capitalist and real estate broker, has bought a ranch in the Canyada, comprising 100 acres of land suitable for subdivision. Mr. Selby purchased the realty from Mr. Bates. The ranch is known as the Charles Kreiss place and at one time was also owned by T. P. Maloney, the butcher. It is an ideal location for country home sites, situated on the sloping hilsides covered with oaks and wild flowers and with small streams flowing through the tract.

FORMER REDWOOD MAN DIES IN LOS GATOS

Miss Mable Paul, a teacher in the grammar schools of this city, is receiving the sympathy of her many friends in the loss of her father who passed aay last Thursday in Los Gatos following an attack of heart failure. RIFLE WHICH KILLED JAP IS IDENTIFIED

A jury sitting in the inquest of Tokijiro Matsusaka, Japanese rancher found to have been shot in the head by a rifle bullet last week, identified the rifle which shot the bullet as that belonging to Mrs. C. M. Culbertson of Selby Lane. The evidenced adduced by the district attorney and the sheriff was very convincing, and was substantiated by the report of Dr. Heinrich, a criminologist of Berkeley, who had made a miscropic investigation of the bullet found in the head of the Japanese and other bullets shot by himself from the rifle belonging to Mrs. Culbertson. The minute lines on the bullets caused by the irregularities of the gun barrel were found to correspond exactly with those of the bullet found in the head of Matsusaka.

Mrs. Culbertson, who was called to the stand stated that she had been shooting squirrels in the neighborhood of her home which is close to where the Japanese were at work in the field. She failed to remeber whether she had been shooting on the morning on which the Japanese was shot or not. Other witnesses were the Japanese laborers who with Matsusaka at the time of his death. One of these testified that he had seen a woman near the home of Mrs. Culbertson at the time that Matsusaka was shot, and that he had heard a shot. Whether this woman was Mrs. Culbertson or not he could not say, nor did he notice whether or not she was carrying a gun.

The jury could find no evidence conclusive enough to definitely fix the shooting upon Mrs. Culbertson. They however, in their repirt, stated that they found that the rifle belonging to this woman was the cause of the death of Matsusaka. No one else had used the rifle, according to the testiminy given at the inquest by the woman. The jury further recommended that if the district attorney thought that he had sufficient evidence at hand to conduct a manslaughter case that charges be brought and the case be prosecuted.

Two Coast Wells Show Indications

Two wells being drilled for oil on the coastside of the county this week gave indications of developing into large producing wells. The Julian Company's well in the Purissima district which broke out as a gusher last week and continued to flow for over thirty minutes, has been cased off and is now being drilled deeper This well is now two thousand feet deep and with the drilling apparatus on the ground can be sunk to a deupth of six thousand feet or more if necessary.

C. Julian of the Julian Co. was in Purissima Monday and seemed quite favorably impressed with the indications given by this work. His instructions were to continue drilling. The oil secured from this weel, as from all of the coastside wells so far developed is of a very high grade.

The McClintic well being drilled just south of Halfmoon Bay, also gave very favorable indications this week of developing into a big production well. This well is being drilled with a rotary outfit and is now at a depth of 2,084 feet. It is reported that the mud drawn from the bottom of this well is about half oil. According to reports from the coast yesterday either of these wells may develop into hundred gallon wells at any time although no really big production has yet been secured.

Outside Speakers Address Local Organization

About eighty of the business men of Redwood City gathered at the Fox Shoppe on the highway Wednesday at a dinner meeting of the Redwood City Chamber of Commerce The chief object of this meeting was to bring before the people of Redwood City the truth about the fight which has been waged in the State legislature for the Eastside highway, and for this purpose Harvey M. Toy, chairman of the State Highway Commission, and T. P. Andrews of the San Francisco Down Town Association, were present.

The meeting was called to order by Elmore B. Hinman, president of the Redwood City Chamber of Commerce who introduced C. I. Davies. Davies after a short introductory talk, introduced Harvey M. Toy.

The fate of the proposed highway paralleling the present highway along the peninsula depends upon the signing by the governor of the Breed bill, providing funds for road construction by a tax on gasoline. In the opinion of Toy this bill will receive the governor's signature.

Toy critized severely the dog in the manger attitude taken by certain organizations in the southern part of the state, notably the Southern California Automobile Association, which he said has been playing politics. The members of this organization, he said are in favor of the road, but its board of directors have been opposing it.

T. P. Andrews of the San Francisco Down Town Association spoke of the work which had been done at the capitol in furthering this measure. Andrews praised the work of the representatives of the bay district who had been fighting for the bill. Governor Richardson also favors this bill, according to Andrews, who said that great credit was due Governor Richardson.

F. T. Letchfield of San Francisco, director of the industrial department of the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce, also addressed the members of the local organization. Letchfield spoke glowingly of the prospects of this district, which he said is on the threshold of a great development. Redwood City is destined to become a great industrial center.

THE BAY AT OUR DOOR

IF the hopes of our local boosters are fruitful, Redwood City will soon have deep water facilities right at the door of our business district. The United States government is now investigating the advisability of deepening the local harbor, and with their aid the waterfront of Redwood City can be made one of the busiest in the state. Every natural advantage is offered here, and the trade which once flourished between this city and the other ports of the Pacific coast should be revived and developed into a big industry for this section.

San Francisco's harbor facilities, great as they are, are limited. Space is at a premium along the waterfront of San Francisco, and the greatly increasing commerce will necessitate an expansion. Only two ports are offered in this direction, Redwood City and South San Francisco. Both are destined to become great trade centers, and to share in a large degree the advantages won for them by their large neighbor

Deep water, deep enough to float the deepest ocean liners, exists within a mile of Redwood City. The present depth of the creek admits large barges, and with a little deepening it could be made to accomodate vessels of considerable draft. With such facilities Redwood City would become a trade center of no small importance. Lower transportation rates would be possible from this development, and general benefits would result.

A PUBLIC MENACE

AS the result of some one's carelessness a man is dead this week, a woman is a widow, and four small children are orphans. Last week this man was able to work and support his family, now they are dependent. A stray bullet shot unintentionally, it is true, but carelessly, killed the husband and father, and left the family without their provider and protector.

We do not know definitely who shot this man, a Japanese rancher of Atherton, but the district attorney has announced his intention of prosecuting the matter, and we have no doubt that he will locate the responsible party.

Carelessness, whether it be with a rifle, an automobile, or any other implement capable of human destruction, is a public menace, and the careless person is as dangerous as the criminal. Even more so, for the criminal kills only to further his own ends, but the careless person may kill indiscriminately.

The person who shoots a rifle in a closely built up district, or in any district where there is likelihood of any one else being, is dangerously careless. The person who puts a rifle into the hands of an irresponsible person is equally careless. The toll of life as the result of such negligence is appalling and is totally unnecessary.

When parents learn that guns are not fit toys for their children, and when grown-ups learn to think of where the bullets they are shooting are going to strike, a great deal will have been accomplished in making the world a safe place in which to live.

MOTHERS' DAY

IF a vote were taken of every adult in the world as to the word which to them signified the most, there is no doubt that out of every ten, nine would say that that word is mother. With no other word is associated the wealth of tender memories which throng the mind at the mere pronounciation of the syllables of this word. Motherhood has been revered in every age and in every land, and that reverence might well form an index of the advancement or degredation of any people.

Tomorrow is Mothers' Day, and it would seem to us that if any one deserved a day set apart to them it would be the mothers, for few of them have a day in the year that they can call their own. Motherhood is a twenty-four hour day and seven-day a week job. There has been all manner of labor reform, but no one has yet been able to limit the work of our mothers to any fixed hours. Before father goes to work in the morning, mother cooks the breakfast. After father quits at night, mother washes the dishes. Then she's done except for darning the socks and looking after the baby at night. And then the best part of it all is that they don't complain, but just tell us that they like to do it.

REPORT OF HORTICULTURAL COMMISSIONER FOR APRIL

Considerable trouble has been caused throughout the county the past month from insect pests and plant diseases as is evidenced by the numerous complaints received, over 240 persons having consulted this office during the period for advice on control measures. Peach leaf curl, brown rot of apricots and various mildews, in order named, have been the most injurious of the diseases prevalent. In every instance, where either of the two first have been encountered, it has been found that the owner neglected to spray during the dormant period as has been repeatedly urged by me. Spraying at the present is useless as far as these diseases are concerned, which has caused most of the insect trouble, will not likely to be active very much longer.

Experiments are being made with several materials for the destruction of the shelled variety of snail which is causing much damage, and apparently increasing in numbers, from Colma south to Redwood City. Some of the remedies tried are quite promising but I am not ready, as yet, to make any definite recommendations. I am continuing the experiments with cyanide control of aphis, also for the control of slugs, sow-bugs, and the artichoke moth. I feel that some progress has been made on the last problem as we have had some fairly satisfactory results with the use of arsenicals on artichokes this season.

A total of 610 shipments of 38,348 plants were inspected in April. From California points there were 469 shipments, 84,187 plants, from the east, 141 shipments, 4,161 plants.

Respectfully submitted,
A. W. TATE, Jr.
Horticultural Commissioner.

Cleaning White Paint

A good way to clean white paint is to dip a piece of soft flannel cloth in warm water, wring it out, then dip it in clean bran, using this to rub the paint. The friction of the bran will remove the stains without injuring the paint.

MANY BIDS MADE FOR LOCAL BONDS

The board of supervisors of this county at their regular meeting last Monday received twelve offers for the bonds recently issued by the Redwood City grammar school district. These offers included premiums ranging from $2,855 to $4,663.

The bids received for the local bonds were as follows: Blythe-Witter Co. $4,167; E. H. Rollins and Sons $3,677; Bond Goodwin and Tucker $3,807; First National Bank of San Mateo County $3,843; Mercantile Securities Co. $3,717; American Securities Co. $4,151; R. H. Molton Co. $3,834; Wells Fargo Bank and Union Trust Co. $3,801; Haris Trust and Savings Co. $4,266; Schwabaker Co. $4,052.75; California Securities Co. $2855; Dean Witter Co. having the highest bid was awarded the bonds.

Fred Drake of San Carlos appeared before the board in the interest of closing a portion of Arroyo avenue in that place. Drake testified that the portion of the avenue in question is not a used road, and it is in the bed of a creek. The matter was placed before the board by District Attorney Franklin Swart, and the board voted to close the road.

As this was the meeting at which soft drink permits should be issued several applications for such permits were received. The following were granted:

Lena Morris, Pescadero; Annie McLean, Beresford; Tony Silva, Five Points; Tony Berberbanzo, Millbrae; Joe Bigini, Halfmoon Bay; Arthur Haskins, Colma; Joe Silva, San Mateo; B. E. Bentley, Beresford; R. C. Frame, North Fair Oaks; Mrs. A. Meehan, San Bruno; and William Goodwin, San Mateo. The applications of Dan Bortelli of Halfmoon Bay, Robert Sigler of Millbrae and Frank Sturla of Colma were laid over as the applicants were not present in person.

The matter of granting a franchise for the proposed Webb bridge across the bay at San Mateo was laid over for a week.

William Cunha of Halfmoon Bay was present and requested permission to cut some trees in a creek adjoining his place. This permission was granted, but the district attorney expressed regret that these trees should be cut, as he said that they were beautiful trees.

Complaint was made to the board by Mrs. Paulson of Tunitas concerning the condition of the old bridge across Tunitas creek. The bridge was said to be in an unsafe condition, and as it is partly in the Fourth and partly in the Fifth township it was agreed that the supervisors of these townships and the county engineer inspect the bridge and see what could be done to improve it.

GIRLS REACH REDWOOD ON ROAD TO HOLLYWOOD

When Kate O'Toole and Evelyn Hoofine were refused permission by their parents to go to Hollywood and become famous screen stars they set out on foot for that mecca of movie struck girls. They did not reach Hollywood, however, for they were picked up by the local police and returned to their homes in San Francisco. The police here were notified to be on the lookout for two girls of their description and found them late Saturday night.

Before Mr. Volstead promulgated his now famous measure making the United States dry there existed in Redwood City just 28 saloons. By a singular coincidence there are now that number of garages doing business here The garages have not taken the place of the saloon to allay the thirst; for gasoline and whiskey never properly mixed, although many have tried to perform this feat, and to their sorrow. It is singular that the garage should take the place of the saloon in number, having nothing in common. Just a coincidence, that's all.

"SALLY" HERE SOON AS LAVISH MOVIE

Colleen Moore Brings Film of Ziegfeld Musical Comedy to Screen

In addition to a story of unusual heart appeal, comedy, pathos and poignant drama in "Sally," First National's newest starring vehicle, in which Colleen Moore is scheduled at the Sequoia Theatre next Wednesday and Thursday, May 13 and 14, with a matinee Thursday afternoon at 3:15, there is promised a scenic magnificence that has rarely been excelled upon the screen.

In the stage version of "Sally" there were but four sets used, and these, because of the limitations of the spoken theatre, were necessarily curtailed, notwithstanding Ziegfeld's recognized penchant for lavishness.

The screen, however, knows no limit when it comes to staging a feature film. For instance, in "Sally" the Elm Tree Inn "set," where most of the early action transpires, occupies one entire stage in the United Studios and was nearly half a city block in size.

For the taking of the lawn fete scenes another elaborate set was specially constructed. It occupied virtually the same space as the Inn.

Studio artisans constructed an actual lawn and garden with walks and trees, ponds and "outdoor" nooks. They also built the entire facade of an immense mansion, with huge twin staircases leading from this indoor garden to the house vestibule.

Of the smaller sets there are many and all of them amazingly accurate in detail, including the Elm Tree Inn kitchen, Sally's dressing room, stage of the New York Follies, Mme. Julie's tenement home, Hooper's theatrical office, a magnificent gun room and the exterior of the inn.

"MADAME SANS GENE"

Producers have road-showed pictures of far less merit than Gloria Swanson's new production for Paramount, "Madame Sans Gene," which is the feature at the Sequoia Theatre on next Monday and Tuesday, May 11 and 12.

"Madame Sans Gene," written for the screen by Forrest Halsey and directed by Leonce Perret, is based on the stage success of the same name by Victorien Sardou and Emile Moreau, that for the past thirty years has enjoyed an international reputation as the starring vehicle for the greatest actresses of America and the Continent.

"Filmed with the co-operation of the Fine Arts Ministry of the French government," reads a subtitle in the production—and one can readily realize what this co-operation really meant to Paramount, when he sees the lavishness and care of detail with which this "gorgeousest" of all Gorgeous Gloria's pictures has been staged.

The story is one of a pretty little flirt, who runs a laundry on a back street in Paris. "Madame Sans Gene" (Madam Devil May Care), they call her because of the free and easy manner in which she treats her customers, rich and poor alike,—one of the latter being Napoleon, when the Little Corporal was just—a little corporal.

The French Revolution brings about a change in fortunes. Napoleon has placed himself on the throne of France, and Catherine Hubscher (Miss Swanson), now married to Lefabvre, one of Napoleon's sergeants, finds herself a Duchess with a rightful place in the Court of France, when the Emperor promotes her husband to the rank of Marshal of France and bestows upon him the title of Duke of Danzig.

But the Duchess is still the same spit-fire Sans Gene and is looked down upon by the snobbish ladies of the court, but she is more than a match for them all—imitating their stiff bows and gestures to the amusement of the great Napoleon himself.

The remainder of the picture is taken up with the amusing manner in which Sans Gene through her wit and the aid of several unpaid laundry bills straightens out a marital riff between Napoleon and the Empress and so establishes herself more firmly than ever in the Emperor's good graces.

Charles de Roche has the role of Sergeant Lefebvre, and Emile Drain plays Napoleon.

WHOLESOME FOOD AND PLENTY OF SLEEP IS KEY TO LONG LIFE

Professor Victor Hoefort, who evidently has a flair for statistics, has estimated that the average man spends twenty-three years and four months of his life in sleeping, and six years and two months in consuming his meals—an approximate total of thirty years cut off his productive time. With the life of the average man seventy-two years, this means, according to Professor Hoefort, the staggering waste of almost one-half of his life. The inference is that by shortening these eating and sleeping period, a man could accomplish a great deal more than he does.

There is a parallel to Professor Hoefort's theory in the story of the man who gradually reduced the amount of bran in feeding his cow, and substituted sawdust in its place. The scheme worked splendidly, but the cow died. By reducing his sleeping and eating time, a man might accomplish more work in a day, but he would live fewer days.

Sleep is the means by which the human machine repairs itself. And of equal importance with sleep is food. In fact, for the past decade scientists have given a great deal of thought to the eating habit of the nation. They have consistently pointed out that meals should not be eaten rapidly, and that, in order to secure the maximum nutritive value from food, it should be kept [illegible] with bacteria. This does not necessarily mean disease germs, but minute organisms which rob foodstuff of much of its health-building properties long before it exhibits the usual sign of spoiling.

The result of this science has been a lower average mortality rate, fewer window coolers and more refrigerators.

Cleaning Without Odor by the F. Thomas Process

Our many years of experience has taught us that it is impossible to do perfect cleaning with cheap, inferior methods. That is why we found it necessary to invest nearly $500,000 in the equipment of a plant and the establishment of an expert organization to do the quality of work demanded bp our customers.

With the "F. Thomas Process" we not only remove every particle of dust but we return your garments without that usual disagreeable smell of gasoline. Every drop of gasoline we use in cleaning is redistilled and very highly refined.

Raw gasoline—the kind that you buy for your automobile—is full of heavy oils and unfit for cleaning fabrics. t is little better than ordinary distillate and leaves a sickening gasoline smell in your clothes.

LEGISLATIVE LETTER

By C. W. TURNER

Sacramento.—In the nearly seventy-five years that have passed since California became a state the legislature has rarely been more conservative in its work than it was this year. While the number of bills introduced was as usual very large—2,147—the number passed was less than at many previous sessions; only 988 in all. The number that eventually reach the statute books will be even less because the governor is using his veto knife unsparingly and out of the first 167 bills which reached him vetoed eighty-six. If he keeps up that record, we shall have less than 500 new laws as a result of the recent session, and that is a record for a minimum of laws passed.

The governor announces that every citizen of California is invited to write him concerning any bill in which they are interested, stating why they think it should be signed or vetoed. No oral discussions of bills is to be permitted and no communication which does not state why the writer advocates or opposes a measure will receive any attention from him. On that point he says: "I propose to be guided by the argument presented and will not be greatly impressed by a multitude of letters, telegrams, resolutions or petitions giving opinions and not arguments. Every argument will be carefully considered."

Many very important measures were either allowed to die in committee or were killed on the floor of the senate or assembly. Thus, no reapportionment bill was passed; though several were up for consideration and the senators and assemblymen from Los Angeles announce that it is proposed to start initiative petitions next year dividing the state as the constitution provides, which if it carries, will give Los Angeles very nearly control of the state and with very little aid it has the votes to put the measure it proposes over.

The plan to adjourn the schools an hour daily for the purpose of allowing the children to receive religious instruction was killed.

The effort to make the office of superintendent of schools appointive by the governor instead of elective by the people was killed.

The effort to deprive the superintendent of schools of much of his power was also defeated.

All efforts to change the primary laws, or to modify or change the various measures adopted under the regime of Governor Johnson were defeated.

Perhaps the most important measure passed, aside from the budget and appropriation bills was the Breed bill, increasing the tax on gasoline. Certainly it will affect more people than any other measure enacted. Another important measure by Senator Breed divides the state into districts for highway purposes, one to be known as District Primary A and another to be known as District Primary B and a third class to be known as Secondary roads. To class A 45 per cent of the funds of the highway commission are to be given, to class B 30 per cent and to the secondary roads the remaining 25 per cent.

In general, class A are the roads which comprise the great trunk lines of the coast and valleys. Class B are the lines which connect the larger cities and towns with the smaller communities; and the secondary roads are those which run through unimportant sections of the state, far from any large centers of population. The only objection raised to the division was that the roads that are to get the least money will very often be those which will cost the most to build.

Another measure of importance is the proposal that will be submitted to the people next year to bond the state for $8,500,000, the money to be used to build state buildings in Los Angeles, to complete the state building at Sacramento and to erect other buildings at Berkeley.

The south came to the legislature asking for a state prison; large appropriations for the university in the south; a state fair in the south and state buildings. The members made no secret fact that eventually it is the purpose of the south to ask for a division of the state, and that therefore it desires all state institutions to be duplicated south of the Tehachapi. The prison, fair and university met with no encouragement from the legislature but the plan for state administrative buildings was included in the proposed bond issue.

Another important matter was the measure to turn the San Francisco water front over to the city and to remove its control from the state.

Encouragement was given reforestation by providing that land that is reforested shall be exempted from taxation for a number of years.

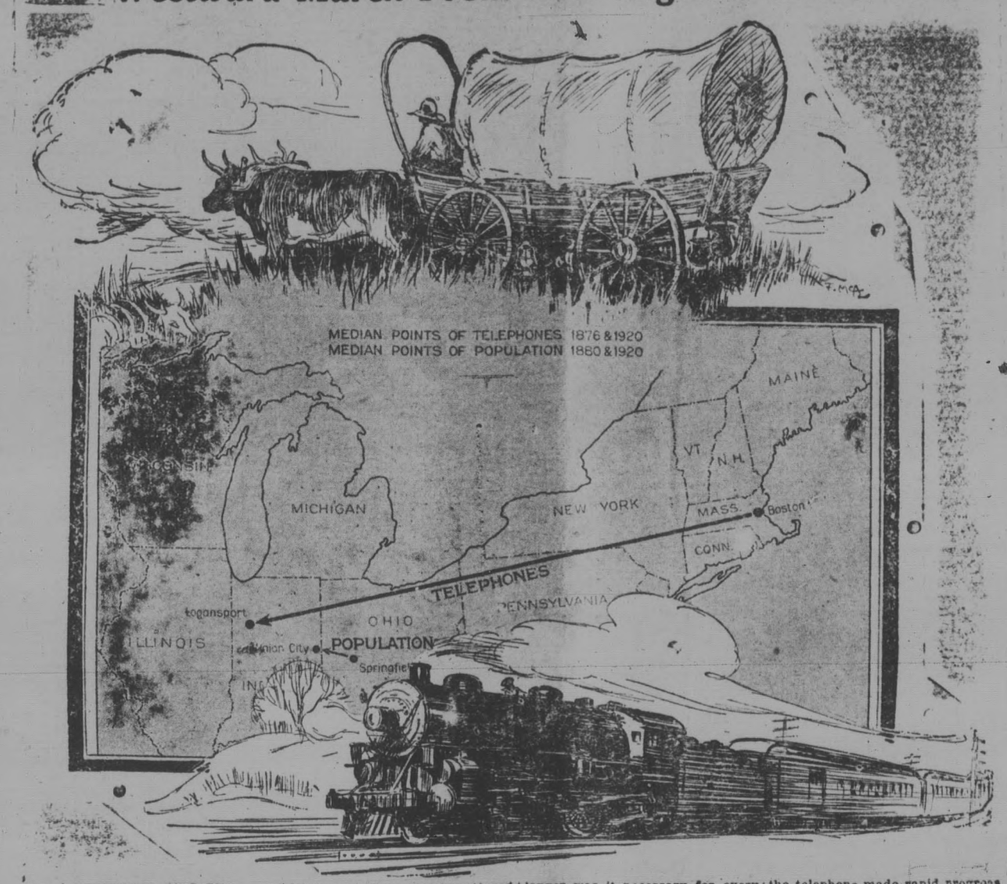
The voters are to be asked to support a bond issue of $20,000,000 to buy homes for veterans of the World war.

The survey of the water resources of the state is to continue.

The rest of the legislation was merely local.

Southern California was well represented in the throng which made the journey to Hemet to witness the first performance of the third annual Ramona pageant, presented in the natural amphitheater on the slopes of Mt. San Jacinto.

Telephone Distribution Outstrips Population in Westward March From New England to the Pacific



By JOHN B. O'BRIEN

MORE than keeping pace with the westward march of population, the telephone has steadily progressed from its humble beginnings of 49 years ago and has widened its sphere of influence until today the median points of both population and of telephones are only a few miles apart. Considered at first as nothing more than a toy, the telephone soon came to be regarded as a luxury, while now it is an absolute necessity without which modern business, commerce and social life could exist only with difficulty.

In the period beginning with 1876 the median point of telephones has traveled from Boston to Logansport, Ind.—approximately 780 miles west and 110 miles south, or about 800 miles in an airline. During the same period the median line of population has moved only from Springfield, O., to Union City, just across the Indiana border—a distance of 37 miles west and 11 miles north, or an airline distance of only 38 miles.

It was in Boston that the telephone had its birth. There the first telephones were made and used. And just as the original thirteen colonies were scattered along the Atlantic seaboard, so also was the early telephone development confined to that narrow section. From the larger cities and towns, the population gradually spread out, by slow and painful degrees, wending its way ever farther and farther west. So also the telephone which had its origin in New England soon found its way to New York and Philadelphia and from these places began another march westward until finally the median point of telephone development not only has overtaken the median of population, but has even passed it.

Just to what extent the telephone has contributed to the expansion of the nation might be hard to determine, but certain it is that without its aid and security, rural communities would scarcely have developed as rapidly and as intensively as they have done. Nor could larger towns and cities have attained their great growth if business had been obliged to continue to be localized in one central section. The telephone came along, however, and its development, together with the improvement in transit conditions, enabled cities to spread their industries and activities out over a large area. No longer was it necessary for every important industry to be located within certain prescribed limits. In New York City the shopping district crept uptown from Fourteenth street and Twenty-third street until today most of the section below Fifty-ninth street is devoted to business purposes. Manufacturing concerns were able to move to localities where they could have more breathing space and opportunities to expand. The telephone, conqueror of time and space, has, as it were, made a neighborhood of the nation.

By the early '90's the telephone was taking its place as a real utility. Local service was being constantly developed and country districts were beginning to realize the advantages the wires offered of keeping in closer touch with the towns and cities. Long Distance service was also about to become something more than a name. New York and Boston had been connected by telephone in 1884 and gradually the lines were being pushed westward until in 1892 Chicago talked to New York for the first time and the early vision of Bell and his associates of a service nation-wide in character seemed on the point of realization.

In the decade which then began, the telephone made rapid progress. From 1892 to 1902, while Iowa gained 17 per cent in population the telephone in the state grew to the extent of 2,308 per cent. In the same period Indiana's gain in telephones amounted to 2,563 per cent and Nebraska's to 823 per cent. Other mid-western and western states showed similar gains which have continued until today there is scarcely a hamlet anywhere in the entire country without telephone connection with the main arteries, the trunk lines of communication.

Another interesting comparison between population and the number of telephones in the United States is shown by the fact that in 1880 there was one telephone to every 1,064 inhabitants; in 1890 one to every 280 persons; in 1900 one telephone to every 57 persons; in 1905, one to every 21 persons; in 1910, one to every 12 persons; in 1915, one to every 10 persons and today, one to every 7 persons.

Even at the present time telephones are growing much faster than is the population. The population of the country is now increasing at the rate of one and one-quarter per cent a year, while telephones are growing at the rate of about 6 per cent a year.

MEMORANDUM

The first publication of this Summons was made in the "Times-Gazette" a newspaper, on the 14th day of March, 1925.
Last publication, May 16th, 1925.

NEWS OF MENLO PARK

Last Friday the trout season opened auspiciously for local anglers who sought the foot hill streams early. Some good catches were made but all the fish were small and undersize. Edward O'Keefe and C. Maloney caught a respectable string of beauties in the Mendigo creek. Donald Derry and his wife also caught the limit near La Honda. Will Casey, the noted angler, brought in a string from the Stephens creek. Fishing is not what it used to be in the early days when baskets of trout could be hooked any place in the San Francisquito creek. Them days is gone forever.

Mrs. Margaret Olsen, former resident of Menlo Park, and divorced wife of Captain Fritz Olsen, wealthy ship owner, was married a week ago at Santa Rosa to Hugh McBurney, an official of the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company, it became known this week when it was found the couple were spending their honeymoon in San Francisco. The Olsens occupied the Logan home while residing in Menlo Park.

Captain Ward is erecting an attractive bungalow on his property on Fremont street. The captain is connected with the Base hospital in an executive capacity.

The Study Club held an important meeting last Monday. The club is planning to give a number of entertainments during the summer.

Mrs. B. Larrecou, the pretty wife of Posmaster Barney Larrecou, who has been in Europe during the past year, will leave from Paris for home about the middle of the month, expecting to arrive here in June.

Edward Derry and William Mitchell leave today on the Steamer Yale for Los Angeles. From that city they will proceed to San Bernardino to attend the session of the Grand Parlor of Native Sons, they being delegates from Menlo Parlor.

Boyd Braden has leased a portion of the Boetto new building on the highway for a real estate office. Mr. Braden also has a city office. He plans to do a big business in Menlo Park during the next ten days. The parties who are negotiating for the lands are eastern capitalists who plan to bring their eastern friends here to enjoy the very best climate in the world.

On Saturday afternoon, May 16, Archbishop Edward J. Hanna will confirm a class of 150 boys, girls and adults in the Church of the Nativity. They have been preparing for the sacrament for some weeks. A large number will witness the impressive ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. James Flood and their daughter, Miss Mary Emma Flood, have reopened their home, "Linden Towers," at Menlo Park for the summer.

Miss Flood is to leave Sunday with Mrs. Marshall Madison for Boston, to attend the national convention of the Junior Leage.

The Southern Pacific Railroad Company is securing data regarding the population, real estate transactions and so on of Menlo Park, which would indicate that this information is being secured preparatory to electrifying the road between San Francisco and San Jose.

During the week Father W. P. Walsh, former assistant pastor of the Church of the Nativity and now a professor of English at St. Joseph's at Sunnyvale, received the sad intelligence of his brother in Ireland. Father Walsh is prostrated with grief over the sad news and he has the sympathy of the community in his bereavement.

Albert Kurtz arrived home yesterday from Berkeley, where he has been attending the state university, majoring in psychology. He has spent three years at the university. Mr. Kurtz plans to finish his studies at Stanford.

The Rotary Club, one of the prominent business men's social organizations in San Francisco, is practically conducted by peninsula residents. On Wednesday Matthew A. Harris, a prominent resident of Atherton was chosen president of the organization, while the retiring president was C. W. Marwedel, formerly of Menlo Park, but now living at Palo Alto. One of the directors is Charles H. Merrill of Menlo Park. It takes peninsula men to do things.

Preliminary steps are being taken to incorporate the town of Menlo Park. The boundary lines as defined in the petition to the board of supervisors are: in the north by the lines of the town of Atherton, south the boundary line of the San Francisquito creek, following its meanderings to Lemon avenue, this avenue to be the westerly boundary continuing to the Atherton line. The easterly line will be the Middlefield road. Menlo Park has endeavored to incorporate for over thirty years and has always been defeated in its efforts. However, most of the former opposition has been removed so that there appears to be an almost unanimous sentiment for the proposition at this time. Had the bill passed enabling Palo Alto to annex adjoining territory in an adjoining county, Menlo Park might have become a part and parcel of the College Town. This has caused the people to sit up and take notice and are now willing to incorporate before they are gobbled up by some other city or town. There are many other reasons why the town should be incorporated.

The Native Daughters of the local parlor will give a dance in the Native Sons' hall next Saturday evening. This dance is being given to raise funds for the participation of the local parlor in the Golden Jubilee celebration of the order. Good music has been secured.

The Dumbarton Grange met Tuesday evening for their regular meeting and degrees were conferred on Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Brown and Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Martinelli. Plans were discussed for raising funds to assist in building a swimming tank at the Veterans' hospital, and a committee was named to purchase needed supplies for grange work. A bible was presented to the grange by W. S. Wardlaw, the master, and Mrs. Lucy Drysdale volunteered to make a flag for the organization. Twenty-five of the members have made application for membership in the Santa Clara County Pomona Grange and will receive the 5th degree at Campbell tonight, at 5 p. m. A short program of readings and a report of "A Trip to Europe" occupied the lecturer's hour.

Next Friday evening the P. G. & E. Co. will have a demonstration of the uses of electricity in the home to be held in the school auditorium, and everyone in the community is asked to be at this meeting.

The first shipment of raspberries went to the San Francisco market last week bringing a fancy price. Prospects of a heavy crop of both raspberries and loganberries speak well for a busy season in the berry industry. The Palo Alto Berry Association has arranged for a truck to handle the hauling to the city and also to the pre-cooling plant at Mountain View. Raspberries are ripening about a week earlier than last year. The loganberry season will commence in June and last about six weeks while the raspberries may be had until frost in the fall.
